RUSS PLOT IN MEXICO PERIL TO AMERICANS

Diplomatic Relations Between U. S. and Mexico Are Endangered
BLAME SOVIET ACTIVITY
Mexico Permits Propaganda on Territory to Overthrow Government

Washington.—If diplomatic relations between the United States and Mexico are severed, it will not be because of the controversy over oil laws alone, but because of the encouragement given by the Mexican government to operations conducted by the Russian communistic government on Mexican soil against a friendly power, the United States.

The precedents are numerous in international law on this point, in fact one of the underlying principles of the federal statutes relating to neutrality is that the territory of the United States shall not be used as a base to plot the overthrow of a government with which the United States is at peace.

So long as Mexico permits a propaganda to be conducted on her territory which has for its avowed object the establishment of another form of government in the United States through the overthrow of the existing order, this is sufficient basis for the department of state wishes to apply it as the cause for withdrawal of recognition.

ANTI-AMERICAN PLOTTING
After the soviet government was recognized by Mexico there was some apprehension here that the Russian legation in Mexico City would become a center for anti-American plotting. The memorandum furnished the senate foreign relations committee by Secretary Kellogg shows that the Moscow authorities had this very purpose in mind.

Under the circumstances, the United States is entitled to demand that the spread of unfriendly influence throughout Latin America. The aid given the revolutionary movement in Nicaragua has been traced by the United States government to the Calles administration in Mexico. President Calles has been variously charged as a radical and a socialist and has been characterized as a communist by his opponents. His attitude with the soviet authorities has not been relished here but so long as it does not take the form of an overt act against the property and contracts of American citizens there is no disposition to quarrel with the views of a Mexican executive on any academic subject.

INCREASED MANIFESTATIONS
The increase in student manifestations throughout Latin America has been noted by the department of state and has been a factor in the department's desire to checkmate the activity so far as it is linked up with any government which enjoys recognition from the United States. Having refused to extend recognition to Russia because the Moscow government would not agree to cease its propaganda for worldwide revolution and the overthrow of governments by force, the United States would not, it is contended, be justified in continuing to extend recognition to a Mexican administration which not only might sympathize with the Moscow viewpoint but permit the Russian legation to carry on an active propaganda against the United States.

The controversy over oil laws has reached the breaking point anyhow, but a break due to a legal interpretation of technical oil land laws is not likely to appeal to public sentiment as a break on account of communistic propaganda encouraged by the Mexican authorities. If, therefore, the United States breaks with Mexico the memorandum given the senate foreign relations committee will be the basis for such action. The memorandum does another thing: It reveals conclusively that American policy in Nicaragua has been incidental to the larger question of relations with Mexico. For the revolution in Nicaragua is likely to be short-lived. The controversies with Mexico over withdrawal of recognition, however, do not show signs of an early solution.

BOB ATTACKS KELLOGG VIEW ON NICARAGUA

Lafollette Calls "Action of Our Government in Nicaragua Unjustified"

Washington, D. C.—(P)—Congressional discussion of the Mexican-Nicaragua tangle swung back Friday to the concern of the American government over communistic aims in Latin America and to the possibility of a break with Mexico over her land and oil policy.

The protest voiced Thursday by Chairman Borah of the senate foreign relations committee, against the course followed by President Coolidge in Nicaragua, was seconded by several others from the senate floor with Senate Dill, Democrat, Washington, leading the attack on the administration policy.

Senator LaFollette, Republican, Wisconsin, in his first speech of the session said he regarded "the action of our government in Nicaragua as unjustified and unconscionable."

The Wisconsin senator attacked the action of Secretary Kellogg in presenting to the senate foreign relations committee a document, purporting to show that Mexico is the base of Bolshevik propaganda, in the western hemisphere aimed at the "imperialistic United States."

DEFENDS POLICY

In the house Representative Eaton, Republican, New Jersey, delivered a general defense of the Coolidge policy in Latin America and asked his colleagues directly whether they proposed to stand "for the president of the United States or the president of Mexico."

The great danger in the present situation, said Eaton, was that the western continent would permit itself to be overrun by Bolshevistic "unrest and strife engendered in Russia."

In reply, Representative Huddleston, Democrat, Alabama, read an editorial describing Secretary Kellogg's bolshevistic statement as "an indecent intellectual exposure."

FORD CASE MAY CAUSE OTHER U. S. ACTIONS

Methods of Placing Valuations May Involve Number of Other Companies

Detroit.—(P)—Possibility of action against other industries on whose stock Daniel C. Roper, when commissioner of internal revenue, placed valuations for income tax assessments in advance of sale of the stock, was reflected Friday in evidence in the record of the government's tax case here, involving former stockholders of the Ford Motor Co.

The probability of further government action hinges around the correctness of the method used by Roper in computing intangible assets of some industries for the purpose of levying against profits to be made by sale of the stock.

E. S. Talbert, former government employee who made the audit of the Ford company prior to sale of the stock, testified that the earnings capacity of the stock was combined with its sale value in making the assessment valuation, the general rule being that the valuation per share equalled about ten times its earnings capacity.

In addition to the Ford stock the same method was used in arriving at the valuation of breweries and distilleries when they were put out of business by the liquor law, Talbert testified.

CLAIM LABOR NOT FRIENDLY TO COMMUNISM

Foreign Secretary Says Nation Not to Blame for Action of Foreigners

DEPORT FOUR PRIESTS

Relations Between Nations Depend on Washington, Official Believes

BULLETIN

Mexico City.—(P)—The department of industry and commerce has delivered to Attorney General Ortega the first of its citations of oil companies who have not applied for ratification of their rights under the petroleum and land laws.

The citations were delivered under an order, issued by President Calles on Jan. 4, and were furnished in order that the attorney general "may take action to which the nation is entitled against private individuals or corporations engaged in the oil industry which have not fulfilled the laws" concerning their concessions.

Merida, Yucatan.—(P)—Expelled "on charges of having violated the new religious laws by officiating at masses," four Mexican priests were placed Thursday on the steamer Munplace, bound for New Orleans. The priests, Fathers Crescencio Cruz, Gustavo Caballero, Citarino Delgado and Manuel Loria Rosado, were arrested Monday.

They were put on board the steamer despite a writ of amparo, granted by a federal judge, suspending the order of deportation.

Mexico City.—(P)—Developments in the situation between the United States and Mexico now are believed to hinge on possible action by the Washington government. Among the possibilities seen here are the withdrawal of the American ambassador and the lifting of the embargo on shipment of arms into Mexico from the United States.

Secretary Kellogg's declaration regarding communistic activities in Mexico, aimed at the United States, has drawn notice from the Mexican foreign secretary, and Ricardo Trevino, secretary general of the regional confederation of labor, the dominant labor group in this country.

The foreign secretary asserted that Mr. Kellogg's statement before the American senate committee of the American senate did not prove the charge that Mexico was attempting to establish a bolshevistic hegemony in Latin America.

NOT RESPONSIBLE

As for decisions taken by foreign organizations, nobly could not be responsible, he said, but it was necessary "energetically to reject these charges against the Mexican government, especially regarding its relations with Russia."

DEPORT "REBEL" PRIESTS

Pursuant to its belief that priests are inciting the Catholic to rebellion, the government has decided to deport all priests captured heading rebels.

Charges of anti-Catholic persecutions are made by the newspaper Excelsior, which says it has reliable authority for the statement that five youths, none more than 20, were shot and killed at Leon last Monday, after having their tongues cut out, for participating in an alleged Catholic uprising there. Six others, it says, were executed.

The paper, in an editorial, condemns the "waste of blood" in Mexico, abuse of the death penalty and "informal executions."

The whereabouts of Bishop Pascual Diaz, secretary of the Catholic episcopate, who was reported to have been ordered expelled from the country after his arrest last Monday, is still a subject of uncertainty.

COUNTY'S "THIRD" OF TAXES BIGGER THAN CITY'S SHARE

City Is Loser in Personal Property Tax Because of Difference in Assessment

Although the law is specific in that it provides that the collecting city shall retain one-third of the tax paid on personal property, Appleton's share of this tax will be considerably less than one-third this year. This discrepancy is due to a difference in the basis for assessing automobiles and bank stock in the city and in the county. The average assessment on automobiles and on bank stock as fixed by the city assessor is quite a bit less than the average determined by the county, and the county collects on the basis of its own assessment.

Automobiles in the city have an average of $234 fixed by the city assessor, while the county has fixed the average value at $445. The total value, as set in the city assessment is $1,117,116 while the county's figure is $1,458,745. The law provides that the personal property is to be equally divided between the county, the city and the city schools, but the county must be paid its share on its own valuation.

Furthermore, the mayor pointed out, this bank tax is being paid under protest each year and if the courts decide against the city it will mean that Appleton must refund to the banks approximately $150,000 collected in the past four years. Of this sum, the county has received more than $50,000, with no prospect of the city ever getting any of it back.

However, the law does not provide that the county shall repay any taxes. This means that while the city received less than $100,000 it will be obliged to repay approximately $150,000.

The county, therefore, will receive more than one-third of the money collected here, and the schools must receive a full one-third, but the poor city's share will be less by the amount paid the county in excess of an equal one-third division.

To further complicate the matter, and indicating that the county assessor is too high, according to Mayor A. C. Rule, many complaints have been received at the city hall of overvaluation of automobiles. A preliminary survey of the assessment indicates that there are some mistakes and there probably will be some rebates.

If the city assessment of motor vehicles is too high and the county assessment averages $111 higher, it is apparent that the county assessment is entirely too high, the mayor pointed out.

A similar condition exists in the payment of the tax on bank stock. Last year the city valuation of this stock was $1,415,000 while the county figure is $1,491,772. This means that the city must pay the county's share of the personal property tax on the excess $75,000 from the city's share of the tax collected.

United States Navy SEEMS MORE RECRUITS

Recruits in the United States navy have been asked for ratings of naturists, machinists, mat, blacksmiths, boiler-makers, hospital apprentice, buglers, seaman second class, and apprentice seaman. Communications may be sent to the United States Navy Recruiting station in Green Bay.

Opportunities through the radio as well as through travel, are offered in the navy today. Every battleship, cruiser, destroyer, seaplane, and many land stations all over the world have radios. Hundreds of men connected with commercial radio are ex-navy men who got their start in radio in the navy, it is claimed.

The United States navy was a pioneer in the development and growth of the radio industry. When it helped Marconi in his early experiments, it was almost the only user of radio.

POLICE RECOVER STOLEN VEHICLE

Car Taken in Lansing, Mich. Is Found by Appleton Officers

A Chevrolet coach, stolen Jan. 10, from the Hertz Driveurself station, 120 E. Ottawa-st., Lansing, Mich., was recovered here Thursday afternoon by Appleton police. The car was abandoned Wednesday night almost directly across from the police station with a damaged left front axle, and when nobody claimed it during the day, it was taken in charge by the police.

The license number of a Ford coupe owned by a Joliet, Ill., man was carried by the Chevrolet. Instead of the original number, a 1927 Michigan license, 200355. The driver either was struck by another motorist on W. Washington-st. or was in an accident elsewhere, damaging the axle so that it gave way while the car was going past police headquarters.

Friday morning police received a description of a car stolen from the Lansing, Mich., firm, and the description motor number corresponded with the machine found here. Eugene LaDeaux, 25, is charged with having stolen the machine, the police were informed. He is about five feet eight and one-half inches tall, weighs 144 pounds, has dark brown hair and brown eyes.

Chief Prim wired the Lansing firm Friday morning that he had the car in his possession.

KAUKAUNA MAN DENIES DISORDERLY CHARGES

Bond, fixed at $100, was not furnished and he was lodged in the county jail. He was reported Friday morning that he had changed his mind and wished to plead guilty, but the judge did not indicate whether any disposition of the case would be made before the time set for the hearing.

HEILIG OPPOSES ANY CHANGES IN VOCATIONAL LAW

Says Removal of Compulsory Feature Would Undermine Training System

The proposal to modify the part-time school law so as to remove the compulsory feature for boys and girls between the ages of 16 and 18 at the discretion of the court would undermine the entire vocational training system, says Dr. Heilig, director of the Appleton Vocational School and president of the Wisconsin Association of Vocational Directors.

Members of the Wisconsin County Judges' association at their meeting in Milwaukee recently, criticized the law and passed a resolution asking the legislature to amend the statute so that when a child is over 16 he may cease to attend school entirely to go to work, if in the discretion of the judge this is for the best interest of the child.

Judges claim that in some instances they have had to send boys to jail because, under the law, they cannot hold a full time job and it is extremely difficult to get a part time job. In desperation they sometimes turn to criminal pursuits as a means of making money.

"Wisconsin has always been a leader in trying to make the initial years of employment yield value educationally," Mr. Heilig said, "and were this compulsory clause repealed the plan would break down."

"The vocational school law is workable only when there are no exceptions. The minute an exemption is made in one case, another springs up. Soon there is a large group who are working six days a week in competition with others who want to work."

five and take advantage of the schooling the state provides for one day. Is that fair?

"As for charges of the judges that the law makes loafers," says Mr. Heilig, "the opposite is true. The law curbs loafing. Under the compulsory clause we can send out a truant officer to find out about young men and women who neither go to school nor work. We bring them into school and place them at work. If there were no compulsion between the ages of 16 and 18, natural born loafers could lead to their heart's content and then there would be the making of criminals, as the judges profess to fear."

"The only plausible excuse for non-attendance, as far as I can determine," Mr. Heilig declared, "is in the case of an orphan who must support himself or a youth who must help support a widowed mother. In passing the state compulsory law, the need for exceptions was brought out but it was also shown that unless the compulsory clause was attached to the law there would always be a small group of under privileged, ill-trained and uneducated men and women in society."

"We directors grant that in many cases a widow needs help, but it must also be remembered that poverty breeds poverty when the children of a widow do not have an opportunity to continue their training at least on a part time basis. I have every confidence that education and training can eventually efface poverty," Mr. Heilig declared.

STREET COMMITTEE TO TALK PURCHASE OF SNOW REMOVER

Aldermen Will Meet Next Monday Afternoon to Consider Proposal

Purchase of a snow loader will be discussed at a meeting of the street and bridges committee at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon at the city hall. The special meeting has been called by Alderman Charles Fosse, chairman. Bids for a snow remover were received and opened at the last council meeting but the alderman decided not to take any action on the matter until further investigation of the loaders had been made by the street committee. Bids ranged from $2,000 to $18,000. The snow loader also could be used as a gravel loader, thus utilizing the machine the entire year around. It was pointed out by the mayor. "It costs approximately $5 an hour for a truck and several men," the mayor said, "and if we can purchase a machine that will enable the street department to do two to three times as much work at half cost, then a snow loader would be a good investment."

The extremely high cost of gravel, which must be used in repairing streets next year because of the shortage of cinders, is another factor which should be considered in the purchase of the machine which can be converted into a gravel loader, according to the mayor.

Now the city must pay from $1.60 to $2 a yard for gravel. With a loader it could arrange with the owner of a gravel pit near the city to buy gravel at 25 cents a yard. The loader could be put into the pit and one man could man a truck, drive to the pit, load it with the loader and return with his load to the city. In this manner a great deal of money would be saved for the tax payers each year, the mayor said.

Letters were sent to various Wisconsin cities who are using snow loaders by Mr. Fosse and these answers will be read at the committee meeting Monday.

"Other President" Of Nicaragua Mild, Meek

Washington—What sort of a person is this fellow Juan Bautista Sacasa, the "other president" of Nicaragua, who is fighting both the "other government" down there and our own?

Is he the rank, raving bolshevik he has been pictured by his enemies? His friends here say he is just a brilliant medical authority with a conservative mind and mild, professional demeanor. Neutral Nicaraguans say he is so mild as to seem meek.

But Sacasa, who was never a politician, has been pushed into the leadership of a cause embracing the ideal of hundreds of thousands of Nicaraguans. Circumstances put him there and now Sacasa, who is said to have no personal political ambitions, is determined to fight to the last for what he and his followers conceive as honest and peaceful government of Nicaragua by Nicaraguans.

A "MOST AMERICAN" MAN
He is described as the "most American" man in Nicaragua. He spent several years in the United States as a medical student, taking a college course at Georgetown and a medical degree at Columbia, and has been here on missions twice since.

The "other president," who is likely to be the only president if our country doesn't prevent him, is 50 years old. He was born in Leon, the largest city and the liberal center of Nicaragua. His father, Dr. Roberto Sacasa, was president of Nicaragua from 1889 to 1893. A revolt overthrew

Dr. Roberto in 1893 and he was exiled to the United States, where he died. Juan was studying medicine at Columbia when the revolt came. He returned to Leon in 1898 to enter practice. His skill and his personality made him one of the most prominent and successful physicians there and he was made a professor of anatomy at the University of Leon.

A few years later he was chosen dean of the medical school at the University of Leon and became known as one of the country's leading citizens. He mixed neither in politics nor social questions.

NOMINATED FOR PRESIDENT
In 1924 some of his friends nominated him for president in opposition to Dr. Leonardo Arguello, the other liberal candidate, and he defeated Arguello in the primaries.

With the elections approaching the progressive wing of the conservative party came into the liberal camp. After some negotiating, Sacasa gracefully stepped aside and agreed to be content with the vice presidency—which means much less in Nicaraguan affairs than the job of Charles G. Dawes—while Carlos Solozano took the big plum.

The Solozano-Sacasa ticket beat Emiliano Chamorro by two to one. The two men were inaugurated in 1925 and Sacasa went on practicing medicine and "dealing" for the Nicaraguan vice president's duties are virtually non-existent.

Then Chamorro engineered his coup. On Oct. 25 Chamorro seized the all-important La Foma fortress at Nicaragua and Sacasa is said to have been offered $25,000 if he would resign as Solozano had. He wouldn't and Chamorro sent troops to take him "dead or alive." Sacasa fled into Salvador.

There he promptly issued a manifesto of protest to all Central American republics and our State Department and this was at least partially responsible for this government's refusal to recognize Chamorro, who was forced to resign in favor of his friend, Adolfo Diaz.

Meanwhile Chamorro had put some of his party men into the Congress and that body—which Sacasa says was illegitimate—exiled Sacasa for two years.

In May, Sacasa went to Guatemala, staying there until November, still asserting his claims to the presidency.

Meanwhile an army had formed on the Nicaraguan Atlantic coast under General Moncada, to represent the liberals and return Sacasa to the presidential chair in Nicaragua.

In order to organize a government that would be constitutional Sacasa had to return to Nicaraguan soil. So he sailed to Puerto Cabezas in November with other exiled leaders and established the government.

Mrs. Sacasa, who until this time had stayed at her husband's side, remained in Guatemala. She is a famous Nicaraguan beauty of semiblonde type and a daughter of the Arguello family.

FEW FAIL TO PAY FOR WATER SERVICE

85 Per Cent of Consumers
Take Advantage of Discount Period

Approximately 85 per cent of the 5,325 persons who purchase water from the city take advantage of the 10 day discount period to pay their water bills, according to Fred R. Morris, secretary of the water commission. The discount is 1 cent on each 100 cubic feet of water used.

Of the remaining 15 per cent, all but 200 pay their bills before the 25 day of the month in which they are due. Mr. Morris stated. After this date all bills are considered delinquent and notices to that effect are sent to patrons. The notices state that unless the bill is settled before the first day of the next month, water service will be discontinued.

Even this notice fails to collect all bills and the trouble man is sent out to approximately 50 homes each month. Of these 50, about 25 more pay their bills, while water service to the remaining 25 is discontinued. Mr. Morris said. Upon settlement of the old account and payment of $1 fee,

The average water bill is $3. This means about $1 a month or approximately 3 cents a day.

E. Washington to E. Pacific-sts. The property owners are to select the type of pavement, according to Mr. Connelley.

The common council authorized the board of public works to prepare plans and specifications for this street, and the plans will be ready for presentation at the semi-monthly council meeting next Wednesday, according to the engineer.

CAUSES, REMEDIES OF DISHONESTY ARE STUDIED AT SCHOOL

Ask Senior Students to Fill Out Questionnaires on Subject

Questionnaires on honesty in high school works will be filled out by seniors at Appleton high school Monday as a part of a survey being conducted by 15 high schools in the state. Appleton is one of the schools participating in the survey which is in charge of G. O. Banting, superintendent of schools in Waukesha, II. H. Heblle, principal of Appleton high school, is a member of the committee which was appointed after a discussion at the meeting of the Wisconsin Teachers association in Milwaukee in November.

The survey seeks to find the causes and remedies for dishonesty in high schools. The results of the questionnaires will be compiled and sent to Mr. Banting. He in turn will compile the results of the 15 schools submitting reports and this will be given to the state superintendent of schools prior to the 1927 convention of the Wisconsin Teachers association.

Four main parts are given in the questionnaires: the facts, the attitude of pupils, the cause, and the remedy. The papers are not signed by the students who fill them out.

In the first part, where the committee seeks the facts existing in the school, the students are asked: "In your judgement, is there little, much, or very much dishonesty in school work done by pupils of this school?" This is further specified by activity in work done in school hours and in that out of school hours. He is then to describe briefly some of the ways in which dishonesty is practiced.

The committee further asks if the amount of dishonesty depends in any way upon the classification of pupils as freshmen, sophomores, juniors and seniors; on the subject studied; and on the general attitude of the teacher. The last question in this group was based on recognition of dishonesty by teachers. "Generally speaking, do the pupils who do dishonest work, get away with it?" At the time the work is done dishonestly, are they discovered or are they eventually recognized on the part of the instructors for this dishonest work?

Have pupils a conscience in the matter, the seniors will be asked in the section on the attitude of pupils. The point of view of those doing honest work toward those who do not is also requested.

The most important reasons for such dishonest work as may exist in this school and the greatest single cause are included. Under the remedy, they are asked to make suggestions for improving existing conditions.

Miniatures Of Appleton Children Are On Display

JOHN ROSEBUSH

JUDSON ROSEBUSH

Miniatures of two Appleton children, John and Judson Rosebush, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Judson G. Rosebush, are among the work of Madame Eda Nemecio Casterton now on display in the art exhibit of the Milwaukee Journal's Art gallery in Milwaukee. During the first week of the exhibit, miniatures of Betty and Jimmy Buchanan, children of Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Buchanan of Appleton, were a part of the display.

Madame Casterton ranks among the half dozen greatest artists in America and has a special aptitude for painting children. The miniatures are said to be excellent likenesses.

The artist's works have been exhibited in many places, including the Paris salon. Her most recent award was given at the Sesqui-Centennial exposition in Philadelphia, Pa., where she exhibited a miniature of Alice Goss. Among the notable persons painted by Madame Casterton are Madame Galli-Curci; Frank E. Peysaud, landscape artist of Chicago; Miss Ella Armour, daughter of A. Watson Armour of Chicago; and Mrs. Frank Wislart of Chicago.

The present exhibit in the Journal building will continue until Feb. 26 when a new display will be hung. Special arrangements are made with woman's clubs and other organizations who wish to visit the gallery.

Madame Casterton lived in various Wisconsin cities when a girl. Among them are Kaukauna, Clintonville, Brill and Oconto.

The age of a salmon can be learned by examining its scales through a microscope. The scale contains a number of tiny lines which multiply at the rate of 16 a year.

ZIMMERMAN'S MESSAGE

Governor Zimmerman's message to the legislature is a creditable document. In sharp contrast to recent messages and executive policies, he speaks temperately and dispassionately of the problems of state government. The important part of his recommendations to the legislature, touching public expenditures and taxation, he reserved for the close. He makes no specific suggestions for tax revision, but he admits that the present system is unjust and unscientific. "The merest novice in the study of taxation knows that it is possible to meet the situation more intelligently than we are now doing," he says. He frankly declares that the tax legislation enacted by the last legislature has discriminated against manufacturers and merchants. He believes the inequalities should be wiped out. How, he does not undertake to say, except to condemn in principle all personal property taxation. Income taxation was adopted by Wisconsin with the declared purpose of eventually wiping out personal property taxes, which everyone knows are largely uncollectable, impossible of just levy and from any point of view the least satisfactory of all taxes. The personal property offset against the income tax was the first step in this program, but it did not get very far. Instead of making it an instrument for the eventual abolishment of personal property taxes, the last legislature repealed the offset itself and has thus made the whole subject of tax adjustment and reform more chaotic than ever.

Mr. Zimmerman recognizes that the personal property tax cannot be removed at once, because under the new law it yields some fourteen or fifteen million dollars in revenue, but he believes the policy of the state ought to be toward its gradual abolishment, and we think all careful students of taxation will agree with him. Repeal of the property tax on automobiles, which he favors, would be a move in this direction.

Mr. Zimmerman does not set himself up as an authority on taxation. He believes it is so important and large a subject that it should be made a matter of such special study "as will enable us to deal with it comprehensively and effectively." He therefore recommends the creation of a body to devote itself to co-operation with the tax commission, to a thorough study of our tax problems "on a plane above that of mere partisan interest or personal ambition." He does not believe that a salaried commission is necessary, but would have it made up of representatives of agriculture, labor, merchandising interests, manufacturers and a recognized student of the subject from the university. We think there should also be included official representatives of the counties and municipalities.

Mr. Zimmerman's whole purpose appears to be a desire to take taxation out of politics and to deal with it honestly, fairly and scientifically. He sees that recent tax policies of the state have been evolved out of partisanship, set ideas and a purpose to punish certain classes. He recognizes that as they now exist, the tax laws are unsatisfactory and discriminatory. This is the first admission of the kind to come from Madison in a long time. We are not concerned so much with the governor's specific proposals as with his open-mindedness and his frank attitude on the question, all of which gives hope that we shall see a new tax policy inaugurated in the near future, and that the days of hostility toward industry and extensive income producers are nearing the end. A change of attitude, more than specific remedial laws, is what the industrial and business interests desire to see at this time.

Mr. Zimmerman wisely observes that there is no way of permanently reducing taxation except by curtailing public expenditures. It is his opinion that government expenses have increased unduly. He directs attention to the fact that the net disbursements of the state alone have increased ten-fold since the beginning of the century, while the state's wealth as measured by its taxable property has increased only three-fold in the same period. Certainly this is a situation which demands caution in public expenditures, and this is what the governor recommends. He asks for the setting up of a budget director with real power to cooperate with the governor in the control of public expenditures, so that inordinate estimates may be cut down without having to accept them or veto the entire appropriations. He recommends the abolishment of the State Board of Public Affairs, which has done little or nothing to systematize, analyze and limit state expenditures, and which possesses no real authority. Its functions would be exercised by a budget director with power. This he believes would result in substantial economy, and working to the same end he recommends the consolidation of certain boards and departments. The comments on agriculture, conservation, highways, civil service, etc., are interesting and constructive, particularly those dealing with conservation. The main value of the message, however, lies in his treatment of public finance and taxation. It is the first positive effort by a governor to bring about a business-like administration of state government, to substitute scrutiny for license in the expenditure of public funds, and just and scientific taxation for political taxation. The message discloses an attitude of mind at once refreshing and helpful in the contemplation of state government and its relation to our future development.

THE CHINESE PERIL

What will be the outcome of the present situation in China? Will it be war, peace, massacre or amicable adjustment? The answer presents a vital matter indeed to the rest of the world. China is today a vast area of nitro-glycerin, needing only a detonating cap to set off a great Far east conflagration in which, one by one, every great nation may soon find itself smoldering.

The problem is greater because we are dealing with the Oriental mind, that devilish mentality that is so inscrutable to the Occidental, and we are dealing with a simple population of tremendous numbers who cannot be appealed to with reason, but with food and wealth and loot and clothing.

The Hankow incident was a grievous error. It has reacted to the great damage of British prestige in China, and, in turn, has militated against all other foreigners. Already the universal war cry is "death to the foreigners." Battered with victory and arrogant with conquest the Cantonese forces parade Hankow and the banks of the Yangtze with their eyes turned toward Shanghai and "down with the foreigners" on their lips.

Here, in America, we may deprecate the situation. We may say that it is a mere flash in the pan, that in reality there will be no march on Shanghai. There are American warships at Shanghai, we may point out, with more due. Other foreign battleships ride restlessly at anchor before the international concession.

But that is not great comfort to the foreigners in Shanghai. Four thousand of these are Americans. They realize that there are about only 3,000 men ready to land for an expeditionary force as against up to a million Chinese, inspired by hatred of foreigners and hope of loot. There is no time to be lost. Every available ship and soldier should be rushed to Shanghai to protect our nationals at all costs. It is our plain and simple duty.

WHERE I FALL DOWN

I ought to be firm! When I'm sitting alone
This old heart of mine is as hard as a stone,
But when you're standing near with that look in your eye

About all I can say is: "There, there, now don't cry!"

You cute, little four-year-old whimsical miss
I know I ought to be crosser than this,
I promised your mother I'd scold you today,
But I haven't the heart when you're sobbing that way.

I can bluster and storm at the grownups round
here,
But with you I can't even pretend I'm severe,
And I'm sure that you know it, you mischievous tyke.

For you do with your daddy about as you like.

She says it's high time that your training began,
And I answer: "Well, let some one do it who can."
If you must be punished, it's plain as can be
There is no use in putting that job up to me.

Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

Noted Physician and Author

Dr. Brady will answer all signed letters pertaining to health. Writer's names are never printed. Only libraries of general interest are answered in this column, but all letters will be answered by mail if written in ink and a stamped self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Requests for diagnosis or treatment of individual cases cannot be considered. Address Dr. William Brady, in care of this paper.

THE VITAMIN WHICH PREVENTS PELLAGRA

Pellagra has been known in Spain, Italy, Egypt and the Balkans for 200 years, but has been recognized in the United States only within the last 20 years. Cases have occurred in every state, though most cases occur in the poorer sections of the southern states. The federal authorities say there were about one hundred twenty-five thousand cases south of the Potomac and Ohio rivers in a year.

Italian physicians long ago thought pellagra was caused by eating spoiled corn. When pellagra was first widely recognized in the United States some physicians here believed it was an infectious disease, and some European students shared this view. A British physician even suggested that the infection was carried by the bite of some insect, just as malaria is carried by a certain breed of mosquito. But the present opinion is that pellagra is due to a faulty diet, and is therefore a "deficiency disease," not infectious or communicable but preventable by proper diet.

The deficiency which is accountable for pellagra is still debated by the physicians and students of the disease in the United States, one group entertaining the belief that it is principally the poverty of protein material in the diet and the other group favoring the idea that it is a lack of some vitamin.

Dr. Joseph Goldberger of the United States public health service has strongly supported the latter idea, and he has proposed as a name for the pellagra preventing vitamin the designation P-P, which he believes is one of at least two vitamins which have been known heretofore as vitamin B.

Although Doctor Goldberger's position is probably correct and physicians are accepting his work as the nearest approach to solution of the pellagra problem, he himself points out that our knowledge of the distribution of the pellagra preventing vitamin in our foodstuffs is only in its beginning and that laboratory studies now under way may before long round out our knowledge of this.

Assuredly this is not the place to describe the symptoms of pellagra, but perhaps a few general observations will not necessarily harm any reader. That general nutrition is impaired is manifest in (1) emaciation, (2) enfeebled digestion and (3) a characteristic dermatitis on the back of the wrists and forearms.

A liberal supply of fresh milk (unheated or uncooked) and fresh meat (underdone), eggs and vegetables in the diet seems to prevent pellagra or cure it if the general nutrition has not been too long impaired. Doctor Goldberger has advocated the use of yeast as a part of the daily ration when the provision of suitable amounts of pure fresh raw milk and fresh eggs and fresh vegetables is impossible. One or two ordinary yeast cakes each are used for baking, may be taken each day if a liberal selection of the foods mentioned is denied the pellagra sufferer.

Anyone who desires to keep informed on the progress of scientific study of pellagra in the United States may obtain free pamphlets of the subject by application to the public health service, Washington, D. C., or if your own congressman is not too deeply immersed in the problem of how to dispose of all that "medicinal" booze which seems to worry our government these days, he will no doubt be glad to obtain for you whatever the government has published about pellagra.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Helping Hints on Homicide

To chokehold to kill anyone is it best to make them inhale it or swallow it? About how much would it take to kill a full grown person?

Answer—I should not advise that method. It invariably causes comment and tends to arouse criticism on the part of the public.

Does the Lad Like It?

Is it all right for a 6 year old boy to continue sleeping on an inclosed porch through the cold winter, provided he has enough covers? The porch is not heated. (Mrs. C. W. W.)

Answer—If he were my boy and he found it comfortable out there, it would be quite all right.

Slippers

Is Roquefort or other cheese in which there are skippers unwholesome as food? (M. E. W.)

Answer—The greenish or bluish molds in cheese are sometimes mistaken for harmful decomposition. If there are actually "slippers" (the larvae of the cheese fly) the cheese is scarcely fit to eat.

LIBRARY ADVENTURES

By Arnold Mulder

CHARACTERS "DRAWN FROM LIFE"

Damage suits and even murders have resulted when novelists or short story writers were supposed to have "drawn characters from life." There is probably not a novelist alive, at least if he was not merely a romantic whose characters lived a thousand years ago, who has not been accused of describing real people under the guise of fiction. When a novel appears, the scene of which is known to be laid in a given locality, the favorite sport of the readers of that locality is to find originals for the characters. Each person identifies every villain with some one he does not like and often the hero with himself.

David Graham Phillips and Paul

Leicester Ford were murdered because persons with diseased imaginations saw friends or relatives in the undesirable characters in their books, and again and again someone starts a damage suit against an author for the same reason.

AUTHOR WRITES POSTSCRIPT

In view of all this a postscript written to a new book of short stories by Somerset Maugham, author of one of the greatest novels of our generation,

"Of Human Bondage," is of extreme interest. The book of short stories, just published, is called "The Casuarina Tree," and the postscript reads

as follows:

"They" (that is, the readers of the

out-of-the-way communities where the scenes of the book are laid, and applying to any community anywhere)

and do not understand that the disposition and appearance of a person in a short story are dictated by the exigencies of the intrigue.

Nor has it occurred to them that actual persons are much too shadowy to serve as characters in a work of the imagination. We see real people only in the flat, but for the purposes of fiction they must be seen in the round; and to make a living personage

it is necessary to combine suggestions drawn from a dozen sources.

"Because a reader, unfortunately employing a useless leisure, recognizes in a character one trait, mental or physical, of some one he knows and is aware the author has met, it is silly to put the name of this person to the character described and say: here is a portrait. A work of fiction, and perhaps I should not go too far if I speak more generally and said a work of art is an arrangement which the author makes of the facts of his experience with the idiosyncrasies of his own personality. It is an unlikely and unimportant, accident if it happens to be a copy of life."

Which does not at all mean that a novelist does not put people from real life into his books. If he is a true novelist all his characters will come from real life, but they will be people from real life who have passed through the solution of the author's mind and have come out of it something entirely different, in accordance with the "exigencies of the intrigue," as Somerset Maugham expresses it. A person in real life may, for instance, be painfully pious but he may all his life long never do anything that gives the lie to his professions. But he gives a hint to a novelist, stirs something in the writer's imagination, and in the novel that results a very pious person may be represented as having all sorts of secret vices or of beating his wife, or of stealing the pennies out of his children's savings banks.

DOESN'T PORTRAY INDIVIDUAL

When the book comes out the author or is straightway accused of having likened the pious citizen. He has done nothing of the kind. His imagination has merely been stirred to action by a certain over pious person and he has been roused to action to collect acts and traits and characteristics of all the dozens of over-pious persons he has known and combining them all into a single fictional character. The resulting character is "taken from life" but is not at all a portrait of any individual.

And that is the way with practically all characters in fiction. There are often "originals" for them but they are like models to an imaginative artist, not like persons who sat for their portraits.

QUEER QUIRKS OF NATURE

The Vampire Bat Has Growsome His story

BY ARTHUR N. PACK

President, American Nature Ass'n

The true vampire bat is only slightly larger than the brown bat which flies about of a summer's evening.

A number of other varieties often are wrongly called vampires, but the only truly blood-sucking bats belong to the family Desmodont, and they are all so scarce that to describe one it is to describe all.

The true vampire is highly specialized to live on blood alone; its dentition and digestive system are greatly reduced. It has no well-developed chewing teeth, and the teeth of the front of the jaw have developed into saw-toothed instruments for puncturing.

The vampire bites the victim and sucks its blood, and the list of animals which it will attack is a long

one. Mules and horses

Broken Threads

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE
To the home of PROF. and MOL-LIE LEWELL, is a Vanderbilt.
Ind., one night of October 1926, comes MARTHA DALTON, a nurse, bearing a woman on which Martha had been traveling.

Elwell is an artist. He has a son, JIM, aged 5. Late that night two girls are born to the woman, who dies without revealing her name. The Elwells adopt the girl.

The story then moves forward eighteen years. The twins, now growing to beautiful womanhood, have been named MARGARET and ELIZABETH, and nicknamed RUSTY and BETTY.

America enters the World War and Jim Elwell enlists. Two nights before he enlists he discovers that one of the twins is a woman he loves her. He tells his mother this but does not tell her which one,
because he wants her to treat them both alike.

Over in France he is wounded in his first big battle and sent to the hospital. He is discharged again and sent to the front and put in charge of a detail to clean out an enemy pill box.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY
CHAPTER XVI

Had Jim Elwell been equipped with a larger experience with German pill boxes he would have been very discreet about peering over the shelter of the little ravine where they lay and he would have been very careful about exposing his anatomy.

He saw something that didn't look so good. But he didn't see it quickly enough. It was a stream of fire and smoke. But machine gun bullets travel just about as fast as light does for a distance of half a mile, so Jim felt what he saw as soon as he saw it.

He felt it in the left shoulder, the same place he had felt it the other time. He felt, too, that the thing was getting to be a good gone habit with him. So he sat down—quickly.

"Serves me damn well right!" was his emphatic remark: to the others as they rushed over to him. "I ought to have had better sense than to do this. I think that an 'go pokin' my head right at them. I'll o, John," he said to Powell, "help me off with my coat.
I'm goin' down to the creek an' get some water. And for heaven's sake don't any of you fellows try what I did. I'm playin' in luck; I didn't get it in my damn fool head."

John Powell was looking at him queerly. Jim noticed that his face had suddenly gone greenish white.

"What's the matter, John?" he asked quickly.

"Oh—nothing." Go on, Jim.

Jim ignored his last remark. "Just keep under cover, that's all."

Leaving his coat behind him, he started under cover of the sloping bank down to the little creek. He made his way without difficulty, for the wound this time was a mere scratch, and paused on the bank to wash the furrow made by the bullet with water. Then he succeeded after a fashion in binding it up.

His rough first aid surgery over, he filled his canteen, took a long drink and then he started up again and straightened up to climb back up the slope to the little "nest."

But he didn't start—just then. A crashing roar that shook the hillside also shook him off his feet and back wards into the shallow creek. A blinding light flared before his eyes and the creek bed seemed to tremble beneath him.

What seemed an age later, when his dazed brain finally began to function again, he crawled out and looked up the hillside.

What he saw gave him another shock, but one that pulled him to his feet and then left him stunned with its awfulness. Where the machine gun had been was now a hole in which a box car could have been hidden from sight.

"My God!" he gasped. "I guess John's hunch was right!"

He started up the hillside and then stopped short, his eyes riveted on something almost at his feet.

What he saw was the mangled body of John Powell. The face, half blown away, hung by a few bloody cords.
The legs were gone entirely, torn off at the hips.

Jim grew sick at heart. And as he stood looking down at the fearful sight, the chill of cold horror clutching at his heart, there came to his mind the promise he had made that morning to his mother who had looked so much like him.

The letters John Powell had asked him to mail. And they were sewed inside the poor fellow's coat.

"I've got to do it," he muttered thickly, "and I suppose I might as well take off his coat and wear it myself. No use lookin' for mine.
It's probably blown to shreds."

The wonder was not so much that he could think of that promise at this time but that he could think at all.
His brain was still numbed from that awful sight, his senses reeled; he was sick, dreadfully sick.

It was no easy matter, handicapped
as he was with his wounded shoulder, to get his dead comrade's coat off and on himself. But he kept at it, mechanically, and managed finally to accomplish it.

Leaving it unbuttoned, he turned his head toward the invisible lines whence had come that deadly messenger and cursed. Cursed not only the men who had sent it but cursed the war itself, the awfulness of it, the futurity and senselessness of it.

And then the devil of circumstances, invisible but standing close by, laughed a sardonic laugh. Jim neither saw the devil nor heard him laugh; and yet this evil spirit of chance and coincidence, with his diabolical sense of humor, had just slipped a nother one of his jokes into the pocket of the man from Indiana. That's why he laughed.

The boom of guns now grew louder and the bursts more frequent. From where he stood Jim could see great clouds of earth flung into the air as a shell plowed its way into the ground.
The world around him seemed bursting with the terrible sound. The air grew oppressive and Jim, for the first time realizing what a narrow strait he had had himself, grew faint as his imagination pictured himself lying there on the ground instead of poor John Powell.

Powell with his "hunch" that something was going to happen. Well, it had, and Jim was going to keep his promise. If it was the last thing he did, he'd get those letters off.

And Jim Elwell, covering his eyes to hide the awful sight of that grewsome thing at his feet, turned and slowly began again to climb the hill to the crater's edge.

When he reached it he hunted around for ten minutes for some sign of his companions. But not a trace could he find of one of the four. The big shell had done its work completely. Where his men had been was a gaping hole, and that was all. They probably lay buried beneath tons of dirt.

And so he turned and started back down the hill, stumbling along, crying.

STAGE AND SCREEN

"FOR WIVES ONLY" SCORES

Received with every manifestation of approval, Marie Prevost's new comedy, "For Wives Only," scored an emphatic hit at its initial presentation at Fischers Appleton Theatre this afternoon. This is a delicious Metropolitan comedy-drama of Viennese life and affords Miss Prevost as well as Victor Varconi who is featured as her leading man, the finest cinematic roles of their careers.

Dr. Rittenhaus, portrayed by Mr.
Varconi, is compelled to leave Vienna
for a night, and he leaves his beautiful wife in the care of not one but three of his friends. These chaps annoy the wife with the attentions and she plays one against the other with highly amusing results, until her husband returns home. The three amorous friends are exposed in a series of diverting scenes and the doctor realizes that where a beautiful woman is concerned, friendship is a myth.

The comedy is extremely reliable, clean and wholesome. The principal players in the supporting cast include Arthur Hoyal, Claude Gillingwater,
Charles Gerrard, William Courtwright,
Dorothy Cummings and Josephine Crowell, and all are exceptionally fine in their portrayals. The picture was admirably directed by Victor Herrman.

'GRAB - AND - GIMME' SYSTEM FOR SUCCESS IN LOVE.
ADVISES FEDAK SARI, AUSTRIA'S GREATEST ACTRESS

BY VIRGINIA SWAIN
NEW YORK—"Grab and the men will adore you. Give and they'll leave you alone."
"Economic emancipation? The greatest evil that ever befell woman-kind! When woman cuts the purse strings that bind her to man, she kisses romance good-bye. The grab-and-gimme-system is the only road to happy love."

The voice from the oracle is that of Madame Molnar Fedak Sari, recently come to America from her home in Vienna, where she holds the place of Austria's greatest actress.

"For versatility and perseverance in any field. She is the divorced wife of Ferenc Molnar, author of 'The Swan,' 'Liliom,' 'The Guardsman,' and other plays that have had spectacular success in America—and 'Vienna's grande amoureuse' to boot."

The Molnar divorce trial achieved the realm of higher mathematics—with Ferenc naming 19 co-respondents and Fedak countering with 27.

MANY ROMANCES
But the trial gave an erroneous impression to the world. Fedak declares: "What! Only 19 romances? Non! dieu! What stunner! A hundred and nineteen, rather! I am not a young woman."

The Molnar love fiasco was a matter of violets—or the lack of them. "Violets! They are the romance of life. They are what a woman loses when she stops using a man's bank account. If Molnar had given me as much as one little bunch of violets now and then, we might still be living happily in a bungalow together."

Many years of melodrama stand behind Fedak and her romances. Her first sweetheart was the Count Devendy, of bluest Viennese blood, whose family prevented him from marrying her.

"Now," says Fedak, "he twiddles his thumbs in a lunatic asylum—such a horrible life—and all for love of me!" She might have waited for the count to pluck up courage to defy his family, had not Ferenc Molnar, Austria's foremost playwright, attended the theater in which she was playing.

She explains: "Between the acts—up he comes, the great Molnar. And he seizes my hands and looks deep in my eyes. 'Fate! Fate!' he says. 'You will be a really great artist only when a man like me has hurt you.' Well, he did, and I am!"

LOVE LUCK HINTS
Besides the grab-and-gimme system, Fedak's hints to aspirants after luck in love include:
"Flatter your lover. Give way to him to his face, even though you stick your tongue out at him behind his back."
"Make him think of you as a rare and fragile object d'art, for which he should be glad to pay royally, in money and in attention."

"Flirt enough so that he can't forget that other men admire you."
"Never, never, never admit you have a grain of sense in your pretty head. Intelligence sends men scuttling for cover as fast as dumbness brings them running."

"These are the rules I broke," says Fedak. "If I followed them, there wouldn't have been so many romances. But there might have been one happy one."

Next time?
It will be "a heavenly American," she swears. For American women are blessed of the gods, and American husbands are "knigs among men."

THE TINYMITES

By Hal Cochran

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

THE snowhouse that the Tinymites made was strong enough so that it stayed in dandy shape, and sheltered them throughout the long, cold night. They'd grown quite tired from being round and thus they all slept very sound till Copsy woke them up when came the dawn of morning light.

"Ho, hum," yawned Copsy. Then he stretched. "I think some food should soon be fetched. I guess 'bout all that we can do is try to catch some fish. There's nothing else to find out here, but even fish fills me with cheer. I know we're somewhere near a stream. I hear the water swish."

He then crawled right outdoors to look, and soon dropped in a line and hook. It wasn't very long until he'd caught a dandy string. The fish were cooked right up to taste, and not a morsel went to waste. Then all the Tinymites agreed that fish were just the thing.

Said Copsy, "I can eat no more. I guess I'll start out to explore. I wonder where we are right now, and where we go from here." He rambled through the ice and snow, then scrambled back to let them know that he'd discovered something that should fill them all with fear.

"The ice and snow were on right now," said he, "is floating 'round some now. On every side there's water, and I guess we're lost at sea." Then Copsy looked to left and right and shortly shouted, "Scouty's right. We're drifting on an iceberg just as sure as I can be."

The crowd was quiet for a spell, till Copsy jumped right up to yell, "Oh, chucks, let's not get frightened. We're to brave a little band. An iceberg drifts quite fast you know. Perhaps the one we're on will go quite safely through the water until we reach solid land."

ONCE there was an aunt. She started out by being a pretty young vivacious creature, who sewed pink bows on the babies' bonnets said "Little Pies" on their toes when she put them to bed, hauled them on their sleds and pushed them in their carts, and knew how to make rabbits and pussy-cats that jumped.

She grew older and the children grew older. She was not so much fixing up the house to make it look like the southeast corner of heaven, as she was busy packing boxes of goodies to send away to college. And there was more sewing to do than ever. Fancy pajamas for the boys, and all that "oot to munt when you buy" party dresses for the girls. And she was always late about me a party dress nowadays. SPINACH MOLD
Three cups finely chopped cooked spinach, 2 tablespoons melted butter, 1-2 cup finely chopped mushrooms, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 2 eggs.

Simmer mushrooms in butter for five minutes. Add to spinach with salt and pepper and mix thoroughly. Beat eggs until light and add to spinach mixture. Turn into a well-buttered ring mold and pack firmly. Cover and steam for 30 minutes. Turn out on a hot chop plate and fill with the creamed oysters.

The mushrooms are often omitted from the spinach mixture but they add much to the tastiness of the dish and should be used if possible. Canned or dried mushrooms can be substituted for fresh ones if necessary.

She never had time, even with the children away, to think of herself. And there were always holidays ahead to prepare for. Men had stopped coming to see her. She had few friends. Her whole life was her sister's house and her sister's children.

She made home for them, but like the relatives of Lulu Mett, they were not to keep about making home for her.

The children's letters came home weekly to their mother. They usually ended, "Love to you and Dad." Mother would come in and sit on the bed in the sewing room and read the letters aloud. Auntie would speed up the sewing machine and there would be a crooked little place in the seam.

Women In "No Occupation" Class

SAINT AND SINNER

By Anne Austin

The examination of Bob Hathaway by the coroner was mercifully brief, and to the point. Dr. Murchison allowed him to tell, in his own words, of his arrival at the Cluny house at approximately a quarter to nine, of his finding his uncle's body a few feet from the partly opened window. He identified the broken Chinese vase, indicated by Dr. Enos Paxton as the instrument used in committing the murder, as the property of his uncle.

"Mr. Hathaway, do you remember where this vase was accustomed to stand?" the coroner asked.

"It had its permanent place on the low book case to the right of the window which was open," Bob answered. "May I add that in examining the room yesterday in your company I pointed out to you a faint ring of dust on the book shelf, marking the place where the vase stands?"

"The housekeeper and the housemaid can verify these details later," the coroner nodded.

"Now, Mr. Hathaway, what impression did you receive when you opened the door into your uncle's room—that is, if you did open the door?"

"The door was closed. I knocked and received no answer. I thought my uncle might be in the bathroom and opened the door and entered. He was lying sprawled on the carpet, his right cheek pressed against the carpet. I saw at once that he had been struck on the head, and noticed that a broken vase lay on the floor, between the body and the window, indicating that the person who had struck him down had stood behind him, and that his back had been turned."

The coroner rapped rather sharply. "We must not draw conclusions, please, Mr. Hathaway. That will be all."

When he had taken his seat, Faith whispered in great agitation. "But, Bob, he didn't let you tell about the footprints! They're not giving her a chance, Bob!"

"Morehouse will undoubtedly bring all that out when he is called."

As the morning wore away with pointless questioning of servants who knew nothing, Faith felt that her nerves were being rasped raw. At last, her own turn came.

She had nothing new to tell—could only reiterate the story she had told to Chief of Police Morehouse the night before. She told again how she had discovered that Cherry had fled the house, of her finding Cherry's farewell note, which she identified with quivering lips, when it was handed to her by the coroner, and of her frantic trip to the church to acquaint the bride's party, and the rector with the news of the bride's disappearance.

"Now, Miss Faith, what was your sister's attitude toward Mr. Cluny, as expressed to you, her sister?" the coroner inquired.

"She—she was very fond of him," Faith tried in vain to still the quiver of her lips. "She admired him, appreciated his generosity as—as a farce."

"Did she ever tell you that she regretted she had promised to marry him?"

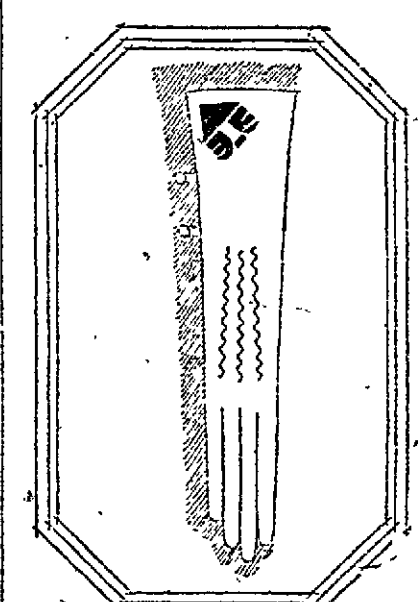

"Yes, sir. But she couldn't bear to hurt his feelings. We all wanted her to break it off, but she said she respected him too much to make him a laughing stock before his friends. She insisted on going on with plans for the wedding."

"That will do, Miss Faith, thank you. Call Cherry Lane Wiley," the coroner threw his bombshell, with a triumphant look at reporters and audience.

APPLAUSE TOO HEAVY SO PADEREWSKI QUIT STAGE

Oxford, England.—(P)—Paderewski has his own ideas concerning inconsiderate applause, and he did not hesitate to show his dislike to the custom of prolonged clapping during a concert here.

The pianist responded for several encores. After completion of one of his best known pieces, however, the applause was lower than ever Paderewski finally went to the instrument and held his hands over the keyboard indicating his willingness to give an encore. Nevertheless, the audience continued to clap with unending vehemence, meant to convey enthusiasm, but which Paderewski considered altogether tactless and with the result that he frowned, ran his fingers through his hair, and stalked off the platform.

Guests At Club Put On Program

Social, economic and psychological recognition for women was the theme of the address on Home Making as a Profession by Mrs. A. T. Hudson of Kaukauna, at a general meeting of the Appleton Women's club Thursday afternoon. Members of the Kaukauna Women's club presented a program of readings, music, plays, and the like. Ninety per cent of the women in the United States are home makers, Mrs. Hudson said, yet they have no standing professionally in the United States census reports. The importance of winning this recognition was stressed by the speaker. Various ways in which women may prove their efficiency in the household and thus win professional standing were cited. Some phases of household needs, she continued, were to further the activities of the mother, and to learn about foods.

Mrs. Hudson formerly was head of the practice school at Stout Institute at Menominee, and instructor of foods and cookery at a Pittsburg Institute of Technology. The National Federation of Women's clubs is making a special effort this year to establish home making as a profession in the census reports.

A satire on the comedies of married life presented in books of the past and present was written by Mrs. E. Zeland and presented by members of the Kaukauna club. Quotations from authors of the second century through 1926 were selected. Among the writers quoted were: Horace, the Roman poet; Samuel Pepys, the English diarist; Charles Lamb, the English essayist; Fanny Hurst and Cora Harries. She gave a discussion of a series of articles on the divorce question recently published in the Forum magazine and closed with a quotation from Browning's "Andrea Del Sarto." The satire was entitled "Synthesis." The satire was presented by Mrs. John Farwell in conjunction with a talking machine; vocal selections by Mrs. Harold Donohue accompanied by Mrs. James Block; a reading from Edgar Guest called, "Heaven O' Live" by Mrs. A. O. Delbridge accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Farwell who played "Home Sweet Home." There were vocal selections from the Kaukauna club at the luncheon and 53 Appleton club members and their guests. Over The Teacups club had charge of the luncheon.

But Would They Do It, Folks? As legislatures "sit" once more, we think on every member's door this motto should be firmly stuck: "Pass the bills and not the buck!"

So Do Your Stuff! Voice on Phone: "Is this the pack-house?" Foreman: "Yes, lady. What can we do for you?" Voice on Phone: "Well, I'm sending over two suitcases and a trunk."—Mother R.

THE FOX AND THE GRAPES (Try this on your Acrophagus) By Jerry After the fox had tried in vain for upwards of a half-an-hour to get the grapes he said, "Oh, well, the grapes are sour!"

He turned and saw regarding him the tall and willowy giraffe. "Ho, ho," the lengthy beast remarked, "You make me laugh!"

"Because you cannot reach the grapes. You pooh-pooh 'em, and they're all out!" Well, stick around, old kid; I'll show you how to get 'em!"

Whereat he stretched his neck and plucked the fruit from out its leafy bower. "The face on that giraffe! The grapes WERE sour!"

NICE, SHARP SKATES! A Department Store Remnant (Found by Mildred H. Lemisen)

Mrs. Gulick (a middle-aged woman, accompanied by her husband): "We wish to buy a pair of skates." Floorwalker: "Cheap skates?"

Mrs. Gulick: "Look here, we came in here to trade, not to be insulted." Floorwalker: "No, no. You misunderstand. I mean do you want the skates dear?"

Gulick: "Don't be calling my wife pet names, young man." Floorwalker: "Heaven forbid!"

Mrs. Gulick: "Just what do you mean by that remark?" Floorwalker: "Cut the argument. How about the skates?"

Gulick: "I merely was asking whether you want dear skates." Floorwalker: "Heck, no. We haven't got a deer. Look here, young fellow! You're trying to kid me! Deer don't wear skates in the first place. We want a pair of skates for a boy."

Floorwalker: "What size shoe does he wear?" Gulick: "Not shoes, skates."

Floorwalker: "I'll have to know the size of his shoe to give you the right size skates."

TOWNSFORM MORE CLUBS FOR STUDENTS IN
KAUKAUNA SCHOOL

Extra-curricular Activities Offered to High School Students

Kaukauna—Several extra-curricular activities are being offered to the high school curriculum. These are being made for at least ten new clubs. Principal Olin G. Dryer said Thursday. More may be organized later. In the past clubs have formed only a small part of the local high school life and the faculty has found that there is need for the extra-curricular activities.

Membership in the clubs will be limited to high school students only and each club will have a faculty advisor. Membership in a club is not compulsory but the faculty believes that memberships in well-directed school activities having worthy purposes have educational value. The clubs will meet during the general assembly period in the morning. Each club will meet twice a week with the most of them meeting on Mondays and Wednesdays. Students who don't desire to join one of the clubs will be permitted to study during the time devoted to the club meeting. Organizations to be formed within the next few days are: Booster club, Party orchestra, Inter Nos club, Mask and Wig, Commercial club, Press club, Camp Fire Girls, "K" club, Boy Scouts and Rah Rah Girls.

Students are urged to think carefully before making their choice of a club. No one is expected to join a club unless he is sincere in his intention of working for the good of the organization. Every club has interest and value for those who cooperate with the members and directors. The clubs will be the faculty advisor of the Booster club. The purpose of the club will be to promote school activities by selling tickets, making posters, conducting pep meetings, patronizing all athletic, forensic and other school events. Members are expected to show the same enthusiasm for the school, school plays and the school year-book as they do for football and basketball. Lastly they are expected to show by example a true school spirit and a respect for the high school and teachers.

The party orchestra will have Herbert Ludwig as its faculty advisor and will furnish music for all school parties and functions where the school band or orchestra could not be used. A Latin club called the Inter Nos club has been organized with Miss Florence Bounds as its advisor. The club is expected to further interest in the Latin work and will give the students in Latin a chance to become acquainted in a social way.

Miss Jeanette Manville will act in the capacity of faculty advisor to the Mask and Wig club. The purpose of this club is to stimulate interest in the study of plays and stagecraft, and to afford an opportunity for self-expression through the production of plays.

Interest in things commercial will be stimulated by the Commercial club. A big part of this club's work will be the interests of salesmanship. The object of salesmanship is to promote interest in the art of selling and to show the student the difference between efficient selling so that he may be able to understand business psychology and therefore be able to utilize that information in school.

Miss Ethel Handran will have charge of the Press club. This club will provide training in journalistic activities for under class men.

The "K" men will form a club of their own to promote Kaukauna High school ideals, sportsmanship and character training in athletics. Coach William Smith will have charge of this club and membership will be limited to students having earned letters.

Miss Myrtle Sand will be faculty advisor for the Camp Fire Girls organization. The purpose of this organization will be to make for better girls who are loyal to school, friends, home, God and country. They must live up to the slogan and purpose of the Camp Fire girls.

The Boy Scouts will have Olin G. Dryer for advisor and the organization will be open to all boys willing to take the scout oath.

Miss Vida Shepard has been selected as advisor of the Rah Rah girls. This organization is open only to senior girls. The Rah Rah girls have been active in school events since the advent of the club a few years ago.

Organization plans of the clubs are expected to be completed within the next week. Students spent the latter part of this week choosing the club they want to enter. Students were permitted to join only one club besides the high school band, high school orchestra and the glee club.

The Smithmen want to get their first taste of victory Friday night. Roll call finds McFadden ready to start at center. GET CORBETT DATA ON LABOR TURNOVER IN RACINE PLANTS

Special Committee on Shoe Factory Defers Visit to Plant

The special committee appointed by Mayor A. C. Rule to investigate the M. T. Shaw, Inc., Racine shoe manufacturers, which is considering locating in Appleton, will not set a date to visit Racine until after another meeting of the committee with Hugh G. Corbett, secretary of the Appleton Chamber of Commerce at 4 o'clock Friday afternoon. The committee met with Mayor Rule Thursday afternoon at the city hall.

Mr. Corbett has investigated the Racine firm and has also compiled some statistics concerning the turnover of labor in both cities and he will present his findings at the meeting Friday, according to Henry Tuttle, chairman of the special committee. The Racine firm is asking a building with about 25,000 square feet of floor space and expenses of moving from Racine to Appleton. Mr. Corbett opposes the paying of bonuses to a business for locating in Appleton. It is against the general policy of the National Chamber of Commerce, he said.

Little was done at the meeting Thursday afternoon besides to generally discuss the M. T. Shaw company. Mayor Rule told of his visit to Racine and his impressions of the company and the information he had gathered.

The total payroll of the company has increased from $56,841.84 in 1922 to $115,188.52 in 1926, he said. In addition to the payroll the company spends between $5,000 and $7,000 annually for other items such as repairs, insurance, cartage, printing and supplies.

Large Building Program For Dodge Brothers Inc.

Another important building program is in progress at Dodge Brothers. On November 1, ground was broken for another immense addition to the present manufacturing facilities. The concrete foundations are now in and steel work is being erected for a new brick and steel building 255 feet wide and 2,200 feet long, affording under a single roof a floor space of more than 500,000 square feet.

Although built during the winter months, this immense new structure is going up with a rapidity equal to that with which Dodge Brothers during the war erected and equipped the 600x800 foot building to produce recoil mechanisms for 155 millimeter guns for the ordnance department.

As the new building must be completed and in service March 15 the schedule which Dodge Brothers construction department has laid out provides that the various stages of the work shall progress with utmost dispatch.

Six steam shovels and a fleet of trucks have made the excavations for the foundations. Other trucks are bringing in the gravel and cement—21,000 yards of gravel and 27,000 barrels of cement are being used in the building.

Within the building, and extending practically its entire length, are two depressed railroad tracks affording dockage for nearly 100 standard railroad freight cars. The rails are laid on a reinforced concrete bed.

At one side of the building is a one mile concrete track. The roadway is eighteen feet wide on the two straight-aways and twenty-three feet at the turns. The turns are banked for a safe speed of forty-five miles per hour at the outer edge and the banking is parabolic to allow for lower speeds nearer the inner edge of the track.

This will afford greater capacity for road testing which has always been a part of the final inspection of Dodge Brothers motor cars.

Regarding the present building program, F. C. Wilmer, president of Dodge Brothers motor cars were produced dealers have been unable to secure the cars needed to supply the spring and summer demand. Year after year production has been increased only to be absorbed by the even more rapidly rising tide of orders.

In 1923 Dodge Brothers built almost twice as many motor cars as in 1921. In 1923 the output was 9.5 per cent greater than in 1922. In 1924, while the industry lost 11 per cent compared with the previous year Dodge Brothers gained 25.7 per cent. Dodge Brothers 1925 production exceeded the 1924 by 15.2 per cent and now the 1926 output has exceeded the 1925 by over 27 per cent while the industry has gained 3.3 per cent over last year according to preliminary figures. Comparing with 1923 the industry has gained 9.6 per cent while Dodge Brothers have gained over 84 per cent.

"A manufacturing capacity of 1299 cars and trucks each full working day having proved insufficient to supply dealers' requirements during the spring and summer of 1925 it was decided late that year to spend $10,000,000 on factory expansion. Early in 1926, this program having been completed, the capacity had been increased to 1700 cars per day—sufficiently enough to insure an adequate supply for every dealer. But history repeated itself and now these additional facilities are found necessary for 1927." adv.

COMMITTEE SEES OBJECTIONS TO MAKING NEW WARDS

Will Result in Unwieldy Council and Fear Candidates Cannot Be Found

The feasibility of dividing Appleton into 12 wards, so that the city could elect six council members, will be discussed at a meeting of the city council with a special committee which investigated the proposal at the city hall, Friday evening. George T. Richard, chairman of the committee, called the special meeting.

Other members of the committee are Aldermen Mike Seidenhauser, Charles Thompson, Jerry Callahan, Wendel Hassenman and Fred Wiese.

Members of the special committee are not eager to create six additional wards because under the present law it would mean the election of 12 more aldermen, increasing the common council to 24 members.

The salary of an alderman is $300 per year, exclusive of committee work which is paid on a basis of 50 cents an hour with a minimum of five hours. As several members of the council are serving on several committees it is estimated that the additional cost would be between $5,000 and $6,000 annually.

The difficulty might be overcome, according to Mr. Richard, by following the course provided for in the state statutes. An ordinance must be passed by a two-thirds vote of the council providing that the city be re-divided into 12 wards. This ordinance must be published in the local newspaper for four consecutive weeks.

Then the council may pass another ordinance providing for only one alderman from each ward. This ordinance must be approved by the electors at a regular or special election. However, another obstacle presents itself at this point. An examination of the records for the past several years shows that it is difficult to get men to run for the office of supervisor and with six additional offices to fill it will be a much larger problem, the committee points out.

Another method of solving the problem and getting six supervisors that would work in harmony with the city council would be to adopt an ordinance, which would automatically provide that the supervisor from each ward would be a member of the city council. The voters would elect a supervisor at the coming spring election.

APPLETON SENIORS ARE OPPOSED TO JEWELRY

A definite stand against high school class jewelry was taken by seniors at Appleton high school Wednesday afternoon when 143 members of the class expressed opposition to purchase of rings and pins. Questionnaires were distributed by William Lee, president of the class, at a meeting called to decide whether the group wished to continue the custom of not having jewelry.

"Do you want class jewelry," was the first question asked, and 103 voted "no" and four "yes." On the question "Do you want class rings," the same number were opposed and 19 were in favor. "Do you want class pins" was answered with 103 "yes's" and ten "no's. Forty students voted "no" on the entire proposition, making a total of 143 opposed to class jewelry.

The cost of the average ring was estimated at $8 and of pins at $2.25. Several years ago the practice was discontinued at the school, but each year a small group agitates for class jewelry. The questionnaires were distributed to get a definite criteria of the feeling of the class this year.

tion and his supervisor would also be a member of the common council.

Another difficulty in dividing the city into 12 wards would be the resulting confusion in the legal titles of all property and the possible clouding of the titles of some property, the committee says.

It is expected that definite action on the matter will be taken at the regular council meeting next Wednesday evening.

BOUND PASS GAINS MORE POPULARITY

Five Man Defense Make Bound More Effective Than Air Line

BY H. G. OLSEN
Ohio State Coach

One type of pass which is coming more and more into favor is the bound pass; the carrying the ball off the floor to a teammate, instead of passing directly through the air to him. There are several fine features about this pass which make its use very worthwhile.

In the first place, since the five-man defense has come into almost universal use, we have a more frequent recurrence of the situation of having an opponent between the passer and the man to whom he wants to pass.

This is because most teams send one or two men in behind the first line of a five-man defense, so as to have a man or two well up the floor heading up the offense.

This brings the problem of getting the ball past the men in the first line of defense, and it is in accomplishing this that the bound pass has come into almost universal favor, because it can be made accurately and with less chance of interception than any other type of pass.

If the pass is made from a point 10 or 12 feet in front of the guard to a teammate a similar distance behind, and is made by merely pushing or chucking the ball to the floor without any unnecessary flourish or advertising, so that the ball strikes the floor on a line with the guard's feet, it is practically impossible for the guard to stop quickly enough to intercept the pass. He simply cannot bend quickly enough unless he is an unusual player.

The hardest sort of a pass to handle without fumbling is one that is traveling downward, as from shoulder height to knee height. The man receiving a bound pass gets the ball on the way up and can consequently handle it easily and cleanly.

Because of its ease in handling and its effectiveness in any situation where a pass is to be made past an opponent who is between the passer and the receiver, the bound pass is probably destined to become more and more of a stock in trade pass as basketball develops.

SATURDAY GAMES

Fox River Paper vs Kaukauna "T".
Galpin Hardware vs Kimberly-Clark.

As the result of the meeting of representatives of the Y. M. C. A. Industrial Basketball league this week, the standings received a shakeup. The Kaukauna "T" which beat the Riverside Paper Co. quint last Saturday was forced to forfeit the game for using an ineligible man. This brought the Kaukauna from a tie for fifth place to a tie for sixth with Riverside, with only one game won in four. The Riverside shot from eighth to a sixth place tie with the Kaws by the forfeit and out of the cellar for the first time this year. Co. D was shoved back into the bottom berth after a two-weeks stay in seventh.

MARQUETTE PUCKSTERS OPEN SEASON SATURDAY

Milwaukee—After a number of practice contests with local sextets the Marquette university hockey team opens the 1927 season here Saturday by meeting the fast Chicago Athletic club outfit in the new Marquette rink. The same team will be played on the Milwaukee river Sunday, and the week of Jan. 24, Coach Kay Iverson will take both his varsity and freshman squads to Wausau, Wis., to participate in the annual winter carnival there. Varsity prospects are not good and with a strong fresh outfit on hand, Iverson is looking to the future.
